

Abstract of the Disclosure

A system and method for aggregating multiple information channels across a network is provided. The system is transparent to any of the technologies in the first two layers of the network hierarchy, without requiring any hardware or software modifications to the network equipment infrastructure. In addition, the system is portable to the existing capabilities at both the user's site and at the Internet service provider.

10020547 130701